ARE YOU HAVING A BABY?

If you are less than 32 weeks pregnant then researchers at the University of Western Australia would love your help!

We are conducting a research project to test a smartphone app for measuring dietary intake in pregnant women.

We are looking for volunteers to use a smartphone app to record their food and drink consumption over a short period of time.

Your participation will help us to identify a method for measuring dietary intake that is most acceptable to pregnant women and useful for research into maternal and child health.
